Kessler Grid

Berlin duo Kessler Grid play hardware techno live on modular and drum machines, with no laptop on stage. Night Signal, their second record, is out on Ringwear Records.

BIOGRAPHY

Kessler Grid are Lukas Brenner and Jonas Feld, who met fixing the same broken drum machine in a Neukölln repair shop. Every track starts as a jam on modular and two drum machines in their basement studio and is recorded in one take, with nothing quantised that doesn't need to be.

Night Signal was written around a shortwave radio tuned between stations. Their live sets run up to four hours and the arrangement changes every night; this season takes them from Unterwerk 9 in Berlin to Gemaal Zuid in Amsterdam and Tannery Arches in London.

PRESS

“Two machines, four hours, no safety net, and not one wasted bar.”

Resonant Frequency

“Hardware techno with its hands dirty.”
